

S African official on 'formal existence' of Incomati accord In a speech to the Pretoria press club, Neil van Heerden, Deputy Director General of Foreign Affairs, said that although there had been no recent dialogue about the security aspects of the accord, it still existed formally, Johannesburg radio reported on 15th October. The South African government was seriously concerned about the lack of dialogue and was prepared to resume it immediately. He added that it was clear that a fierce confrontation was taking place between opposing forces inside Mozambique and that the Frelimo government could not handle the situation. 17/10/86
