

Restoration of communications in Mozambique (Text) The barge (Portuguese: batelao) on the Pungue river on National Highway No 202 which links Chimoio and Tete, can already take heavy vehicles up to 10 tons. Work is going on to increase cargo capacity. The bridge on the Chimoio-Tete road was destroyed at the time of the barbarous massacre at the Nyazonia refugee camp. (Maputo in Portuguese 0500 gmt 29 Sep 76)

(Text) The road between the major Mozambican towns of Tete and Chimoio, which was cut by the Rhodesian armed forces during an attack on 9th August, has been reopened to the traffic. This was announced by the Ministry of Public Works in Maputo on Tuesday. The armed forces of the Smith regime in the British colony of Rhodesia destroyed a bridge over the river Pungue during the operation in which they murdered more than 670 Zimbabwean refugees at Nyazonia camp in Mozambique. (Lusaka in English 0500 gmt 30 Sep 76)