RHODESIAN bombing planes yesterday attacked areas deep inside southern Mozambique, the Smith regime announced in Salisbury yesterday.

It was the fifth attack into a black state announced by the Smith regime in three weeks.

In Lusaka, a Zambian government spokesman said that South African planes and helicopters last week killed nine Zambians and wounded 14 in bombing attacks on villages and an army camp in south-west Zambia.

The spokesman strongly condemned the wanton attacks by racist forces on innocent villagers and soldiers on normal border patrol duties.

He said 11 South African jets and helicopters had carried out the raids on an unspecified number of villages in the Sinjambele area of Zambia's western province, close to the Angolan frontier and about 25 miles north of the border with South African-administered Namibia (South West Africa).
