

THE WASHINGTON POST

Dec. 24, 1977

Rhodesia Releases Photos

SALISBURY, Rhodesia—The Rhodesian government released papers and photographs aimed at countering allegations that its troops massacred civilian women and children in last month's raids on guerrilla strongholds in neighboring Mozambique.

The documents were said to have been seized in five days of ground and air attacks on two Rhodesian black nationalist guerrilla camps in Mozambique. They include lists of women enlisted in guerrilla ranks and pictures of women with Soviet-made weapons.

Meanwhile, the settlement talks between the white minority government of Prime Minister Ian Smith and moderate black leaders recessed for the holidays.

Rhodesian nationalist leader Joshua Nkomo arrived in Havana on his second visit to Cuba in five months. Nkomo has denounced the peace talks in Rhodesia and said nationalist guerrillas plan a major offensive.