Frelimo proposes changing title of country

MAPUTO.

THE central committee of the Frelimo Party is recommending that in the current process of amending the Mozambican constitution, the country's title be altered from People's Republic to simply Republic.

A resolution approved at the close yesterday afternoon of a central committee meeting that lasted for a week and a half also suggested alterations in the names of the country's parliament and of the highest judicial body.

The central committee is advocating that the parliament be called the Assembly of the Republic rather than the People's Assembly, and that the Supreme People's Court be renamed Supreme Court.
