CASHEW PRODUCTION FALLING: With major declines forecast in harvests this year from African producers, the world cashew crop for 1981/82 is expected to drop from 362,000 tons to 357,000 tons. India, the leading producer at 130,000 tons last year, will be up to 140,000 tons. But Mozambique may drop to 65,000 tons or less from the 70,000 tons of last year; and Tanzania is expected to produce only 50,000 tons as compared to 60,000 last year.
