[Text] Mozambique agricultural officials and South African entrepreneurs are to carry out studies of economic viability concerning implementation of a reforestation project in southern Maputo Province. This was reported in today's edition of NOTICIAS.

p. 7

NOTICIAS reported that the project is expected to begin in 1990 and that it will be carried out by [name indistinct], a South African enterprise. The project covers an area of 30,000 hectares in which eucalyptus, pine, and other trees are to be planted.

NOTICIAS cited a Ministry of Agriculture official as saying the planned study is the result of negotiations with that South African enterprise since 1985.
