

S African military spokesman denies links with MNR
A South African Defence Force (SADF) spokesman said on 2nd March that Mozambican allegations that South Africa was still aiding Mozambican rebels were more "blatant propaganda" following an established pattern, according to the South African agency. The spokesman said that it was a propaganda technique to continue with a theme in the hope that by repeating it often enough people would start to believe it. The agency said that the Mozambican newspaper 'Noticias' had cited a former Mozambican rebel on the role of black South African military instructors in aiding the MNR.
