

S.African family released

A combined operation between the Mozambican and South African authorities resulted in the release of a South African family of four held hostage in Mozambique by the rebels since late April, reports the news agency AIM. The family of four were at the weekend on board a South African naval supply vessel in the Mozambique channel, headed for their home town of East London.